5. Communication and implementation process

The final evaluative of the strategy. Monitoring document with Special Cooperation’s coordination and institutional bodies. Its application will begin within a timeframe of:

- Communication and dissemination of the strategy. The strategy will be downloadable on the website of the AECI (Spanish Cooperation Agency) and will be disseminated to its central and peripheral offices.
- Establish specific planning and follow-up systems in these situations.
- Adaptation of aid strategies and forms to the cultural realities of indigenous peoples.
- Guarantee that women be at the center of aid actions, including emergency aid. This should be oriented, in this case, more towards learning experiences and lessons to be gained rather than accountability, although the strategy incorporates Spain’s commitment with the Good Humanitarian Donorship Principles.
- Apply gender analysis to all HA interventions, including emergency aid.
- Strengthen the AECI’s capacity regarding humanitarian issues.
- Drawing up documents for coordination and action protocols.
- Publication of the strategy, and dissemination amongst relevant actors.
- Publication of an Executive Summary of the HA strategy, to be sent to a large number of organisations related to this issue to a greater or lesser extent.
- The Humanitarian Strategy should be known and shared by all relevant Spanish HA actors, and their principal partners on an institutional level, and this knowledge should be oriented more towards the objectives it sets out than the processes involved in them.

The strategy seeks to strengthen coordination and active multilateralism.

The strategy incorporates Spain’s commitment with the Good Humanitarian Donorship Principles. In 2004, the Spanish government joined this international initiative that establishes 23 principles to be followed in humanitarian actions (HA). The Spanish government acts through the coordinate action of the Humanitarian Action Commission (AECI), with legislative power on HA in Spain. The strategy incorporates Spain’s commitment to respect the Good Humanitarian Donorship Principles, which are a component of Official Development Aid (ODA). The increase of vulnerability on a worldwide scale, and changes on the international context, such as the increased role of the private sector, are putting these principles more and more in the spotlight.

In the strategy, the Humanitarian Strategy (HA) is one of the basic characteristics of this instrument. In Spain, this change has also been evident, with many state and non-governmental actors becoming involved in humanitarian efforts of all kinds, and with greater demand for higher standards of intervention to be applied. The strategy aims to bring together, and make more effective, the humanitarian efforts of all of Spanish society and its institutions, and this is the Spanish Cooperation Agency’s aim in Spain.

In the strategy, Spain is placed in a prominent position, with important legal demands and international obligations stated in the strategy, and this is the Spanish Cooperation Agency’s aim in Spain.

5. Communication and implementation process
The Humanitarian Action Strategy (Spana) is an instrument with Special Co-operation's coordination and implementation tools. As the main objective is to improve the quality standards in the field, it is advisable to promote this strategy through the following measures:

- The strategy will be presented and discussed with all the relevant institutions on the occasion of the main field missions.
- The strategy will be published in a monograph, which will include a detailed analysis of the foundations of this strategy and the main actions foreseen.
- The strategy will be presented in all the main international meetings related to the humanitarian field.
- The strategy will be disseminated through all the communications of Special Co-operation, both in its national and international communication tools.
- The strategy will be implemented through specific actions and plans, which will be evaluated regularly.

6. Follow-up and evaluation
The monitoring and evaluation (M&E) plan of the strategy is based on the needs and severity of a crisis. However, it should be set in the context of other criteria for the follow-up of humanitarian responses.

- The strategy will be evaluated through the Humanitarian Action Unit within Special Co-operation.
- The evaluation will be carried out by a technical team, which will be responsible for the follow-up of the strategy.
- The evaluation will be based on the implementation of the strategy and the results of the humanitarian actions.
- The evaluation will be presented in the main international meetings related to the humanitarian field.
- The evaluation will be disseminated through all the communications of Special Co-operation, both in its national and international communication tools.

In Spain, this change has been well received, with many state and non-governmental actors becoming involved in humanitarian efforts. This paper has been prepared in response to this change, and it is intended to contribute to the improvement of the humanitarian response, considering the political context.

Geographic framework
Geographic considerations are always subject to changes when designing a humanitarian strategy, as the needs of affected populations can vary. However, the problems of planning strategies for the most affected areas of the world continue to be of great interest because of their relevance.

Taking these issues into account, the basic consideration is related to the needs of people affected by natural disasters, and the importance of restoring the level of humanitarian assistance.

HA has been provided with its own regulatory framework, based on a set of principles and values, which are specified in a wide variety of instruments in different contexts.

Regulatory framework as a reference for the theoretical framework

The HA strategy advocates the concept of humanitarian action, which is more all-encompassing than simple aid or assistance. It includes protection of victims as an essential element, and adherence to the principles of humanity, impartiality, non-discrimination, neutrality, independence, and connectedness.

International law and relevant international treaties and resolutions play an important role in the HA field. The following instruments are of special interest:

- Geneva Conventions of 1949 and Additional Protocols of 1977 and 2006
- Code of Conduct for the International Red Cross and Red Crescent
- International Development Cooperation Law, 1998
- Resolution 46/182 of the UN General Assembly
- Good Humanitarian Donorship Principles
- The National Defence Law 5/2005
- International Human Rights Law
- The 2005-2008 Master Plan horizontal priorities and HA.

The incorporation of a gender-based analysis and approach should be applied to all of Spanish Cooperation's actions. Human rights, specifically the right to life, are at the heart of all humanitarian action. Although the fight against poverty is not the basic objective of HA, Spanish Cooperation will promote, in the humanitarian field, the fight against the underlying causes that generate vulnerability and human suffering.

Taking these criteria oriented towards the needs and severity of a crisis as the baseline, it is possible, in any case, to propose the following Geographic framework:

- Incorporate environmental risk analysis into prevention policies.
  - The institutional framework of Spain's HA strategy has as its international protagonist the UN, and the coordinating role is played by the UN Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs (OCHA). In the European sphere, it emphasises the role of the European Commission's Humanitarian Aid Office (ECHO), as well as recognising the essential part being played by specialised NGOs based in Brussels, such as the Emergency Committee for Latin America (ECLALP), Action by Churches Together in Europe, and other international organisations.
