

CONTENTS

|                                                                                                                                                                                                |    |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----|
| TEXTS AND MANUSCRIPTS: DESCRIPTION AND RESEARCH . . . . .                                                                                                                               |    |
| D. James, A Note on the Awlād al-Ḥilū : a Scribal Dynasty of Fās (Fez) . . . . .                                                                                                        | 3  |
| N. Terletsky, A Little-Known Work About a Bukhāra Mazār . . . . .                                                                                                                       | 8  |
| TEXT AND ITS CULTURAL INTERPRETATION . . . . .                                                                                                                                          | 36 |
| A. Kudelin, Arabic Literature: Poetics and Stylistics, VII: "Life of the Prophet" by Ibn Ishāq–Ibn Hishām as a Monument of Medieval Arabic Literature. Attempt at a Literary Analysis. . . . . | 36 |
| V. Kryukova, Interpretation of Tajik Wedding Embroidery: Ritual, Image, Text. . . . .                                                                                                          | 50 |
| PRESENTING THE MANUSCRIPT . . . . .                                                                                                                                                     | 58 |
| E. Revunenkov, Sulalat-us-Salatīn : the Krusenstern Manuscript . . . . .                                                                                                                | 58 |
| REVIEWS . . . . .                                                                                                                                                                       | 65 |

Front cover:

Muḥammad Yūsuf, "Darwīsh Holding a Rosary", 25.5 x 7.8 cm. Iran, mid 17th century. The State Hermitage Museum, VR-740/XXV. Courtesy of the Museum.

Back cover:

The wedding sheet rōyjo, 250 x 162 cm. Samarqand, end of the 19th—beginning of the 20th century. MAE RAS, No. 7304-4. Courtesy of the Museum.