UN VOLUNTEER DESCRIPTION OF ASSIGNMENT

Preamble:

The United Nations Volunteers (UNV) programme is the UN organization that promotes volunteerism to support peace and development worldwide. Volunteerism can transform the pace and nature of development and it benefits both society at large and the individual volunteer. UNV contributes to peace and development by advocating for volunteerism globally, encouraging partners to integrate volunteerism into development programming, and mobilizing volunteers.

In most cultures volunteerism is deeply embedded in long-established, ancient traditions of sharing and support within the communities. In this context, UN Volunteers take part in various forms of volunteerism and play a role in development and peace together with co-workers, host agencies and local communities.

In all assignments, UN Volunteers promote volunteerism through their action and conduct. Engaging in volunteer activity can effectively and positively enrich their understanding of local and social realities, as well as create a bridge between themselves and the people in their host community. This will make the time they spend as UN Volunteers even more rewarding and productive.

Sucre is the constitutional capital of Bolivia, although La Paz has been the seat of 2 branches of Bolivia's government (the executive and legislative branches) for over 100 years (the judicial branch, and thus the Supreme Court, remain in Sucre). Sucre is also the capital city of the Department of Chuquisaca and the 5th most populated city in Bolivia. Located in the south-central part of the country, Sucre lies at an elevation of 2,810 m.

Food and telecommunication availability and access:

The city of Sucre offers supermarkets and a wide variety of local markets with plenty availability of foodstuff of all kinds. There are four international telecommunications systems, easy access to the internet and modern banking facilities. Public transports are cheap and readily available.

Climate:

The climate in Bolivia varies with altitude; from humid and tropical to cold and dry weather at the highland plateau (Altiplano). Sucre is located in a rather isolated region of the south-central mountains of Bolivia; the weather here is mild and similar to that of Cochabamba although it experiences much denser and heavier fogs when it rains. Flights to and from Sucre are often delayed or cancelled because of this.

The average temperature during the summer months (December - March, also the rainy season) is 68°F (20°C). During the remainder of the year the weather cools by about 2 degrees and during the winter months (June - August, also the dry season) the average temperature is about 60°F (16°C).

Security:

Bolivia is under Phase 1 - Precautionary - of the UN Security Plan. This means that normal routine activities should continue and that in order to account for all the UN personnel travels to and within Bolivia the UN staffs requires a Security Clearance from the Designated Officer before travelling. Bolivia has no military conflicts with neighboring countries and enjoys democracy since 1982. Even though the crime rate has gone up during the last two years, it is still considered as low and Bolivia could be rated as a fairly safe country. Civil unrest, however, is common and strikes and road blockages frequent.

A Settling-In-Grant is provided as well as a monthly UN Youth Volunteer living allowance (intended to cover housing, utilities and normal cost-of-living expenses).
